At Discovering the Scientist Within, you will participate in fun hands-on workshops and meet with women scientist and engineers.

You will also spend time with other students who love math and science and who are thinking about their futures.

Through these exploration activities, you will:

- Experience the fun of math, science and engineering;
- Learn about math and science-based careers;
- Obtain first-hand information about the lives of women in science and various paths leading to careers in the STEM fields.

Activity topics change every year, but examples from past years include:

- Engineering
- Food Science
- Computer Science
- Animal Science
- And more!
