ODE Resiliency Framework to Guide School Re-opening this Fall

July 15, 2021 –Superintendent Ryan Noss has announced the Corvallis School District expects to fully reopen schools to full-day, five-day, in-person learning this fall. We maintain those expectations today in light of the Oregon Department of Education announcement of the Resiliency Framework for the 2021-2022 school year.

There are always many details to opening school in the fall, and this year COVID-19 safety measures will be part of our planning. We continue to partner with public health officials and will keep families and our community updated as we finalize our plans for the 2021-22 school year.
